

ONE VILLAGE

AIR EXPRESS

F.O.B.

An armed trooper signals the huge Chinook helicopter in to land.

Villagers pile their belongings in tall grass while waiting for the air lift to safety miles away.

Not long ago troopers of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division in South Viet Nam, moving through a jungle area near the Cambodian border on a search and clear operation, came upon a village whose people were totally unsympathetic to the Communists who dominated the area.

Many South Vietnamese in isolated areas of the country have been plagued by the Viet Cong. The Cong tax them, requisition their food supplies, brainwash their children, conscript their men into guerrilla bands and force the rest of the villagers to work and spy for them.

The Cong has used innocent villagers, including women and children, as shields during battle. At other times bewildered villagers have been caught in the crossfire of opposing forces and suffered casualties.

The people of this village understandably wanted to move quickly, while the Cong were helpless to prevent it. The troopers called in massive Chinook helicopters to ferry them to a safer area 15 miles south of the central highlands city of Pleiku.

The families piled their belongings in the tall grass and soon lines of villagers, from tots to elders, with rice, pets, livestock and all their moveable belongings, streamed to the waiting Chinooks.

The furnishings of their church — religious paintings, statues and a cross — were stacked in the grass until Americans in combat gear could carry them aboard.

The brave and adventurous clambered quickly into the choppers. The hesitant peeked in and then cautiously stepped aboard.

Soon the big helicopters roared off leaving the deserted village behind and settling to the earth again soon after to deposit the villagers in their new, safer and hopefully happier homes.

A youngster waits by his family's belongings.

Troopers carry church articles and bucket of rice to the waiting choppers.

Worldly belongings slung over their shoulders, villagers board the waiting helicopters for flight to safety.

Children are apprehensive as they wait their turn to leave.

Reluctant water buffalo, owned by a villager, is led by insistent sergeant to waiting chopper.

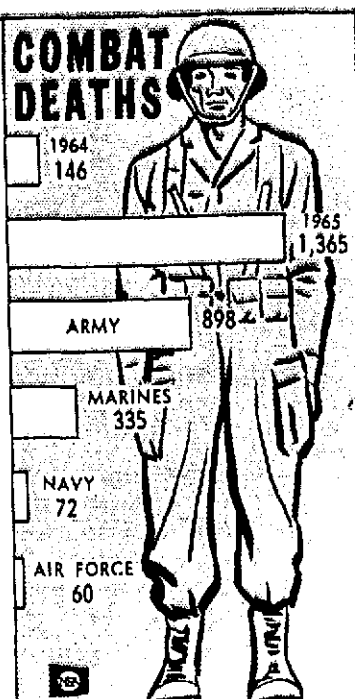

Lugging a heavy suitcase, a young girl hurries to join the others.

Calendar of Events

A tragic indicator of escalation of the war in Viet Nam is the jump in U.S. combat deaths. With the rapid American build-up during 1965, from 23,000 men at the start of the year to more than 180,000, the number killed in action also soared, to nine times the 1964 figure. Two-thirds of the 1965 combat deaths were Army men.

Editor, High Sheriff, in Open Battle

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer
MORRILLTON, Ark. (AP)—Is Gene Wirges a sincere young editor crusading against a relentless political machine or a sensation-seeking agent of the Republican Party?

Is Sheriff Marlin Hawkins the ruthless driving force of that machine or a benign public servant ready to help his people at any hour of the day or night?

These are the questions posed in the Conway County political fight and the answers depend on which side you are talking to.

There is little middle ground in this struggle which has raged for five years now.

In essence it is a battle for votes, for Hawkins is unlikely to be deposed except at the polls and Wirges cannot dilute the sheriff's power without electing some officials friendly to his side.

Originally the fight was between one editor and one political organization in one county.

It quickly took on statewide implications. The Conway County "mess," if it is that, has long been "the Arkansas mess."

It figured in the 1964 governor's race when Gov. Orval Faubus accepted his filing fee from a Conway County group friendly to Hawkins and the Wirges forces moved openly into the camp of Winthrop Rockefeller.

Rockefeller charged recently that the Conway County situation could not exist without the indulgence of the governor. While Faubus has not openly supported Hawkins, the sheriff has easy access to the governor's office and he is one of Faubus' most vigorous boosters.

The battle between Wirges and Hawkins—or between Wirges and the political establishment—has changed complexion several times.

Wirges had the initiative originally, attacking the establishment editorially in his newspaper.

The establishment's reaction, Wirges says, was subtle economic pressure against the paper. This included withdrawal of the county's legal advertising, an important source of revenue for any weekly.

Wirges stepped up his attack, picking up supporters at a rapid clip. He initiated a column, "The Birdtown Bridge Says," which flayed county officials with the rapier of satire.

County officials responded with two massive libel suits which cost Wirges ownership of the newspaper temporarily. Rockefeller stepped in to save the paper for him, and the sides have been clearly drawn since then.

Financed by Rockefeller money, Wirges spent most of 1964 investigating county government with emphasis on the sheriff's office and specific attention directed to the handling of traffic fines.

He charged mishandling of funds at a news conference late in 1964. He had Hawkins hailed before a justice of the peace twice to answer charges. Some of his friends filed a suit asking for an accounting.

Hawkins responded by asking a grand jury to indict Wirges for slander. The jury obliged in October, 1964, and tossed in an indictment for conspiracy. The jury said it found nothing to back up Wirges' mismanagement charges.

Wirges was tried for conspiracy and convicted early in 1965. The conviction was set aside and the slander charge was dismissed because the indictments were faulty.

Another grand jury re-instituted the slander and conspiracy indictments last October and added one for perjury.

Wirges was tried on the perjury count early this month, convicted and sentenced to three years in prison. He expects to get the conviction reversed on appeal.

"I've never won a case in the Conway County Circuit Court and never won one on appeal," he said recently.

Wirges contends that both circuit judges who try cases in Conway County, Wiley Bean of Clarksville and Russell C. Roberts of Conway, are biased against him.

Because Bean appoints jury commissioners in Conway County, Wirges contends, and because the commissioners always load jury panels with friends of Hawkins, it is impossible for him to get a fair trial in Conway County.

And, he says, because Bean appoints jury commissioners in each of the other four counties in the 5th Judicial Circuit, it is unlikely that the can get a fair trial in any of them.

On this line of reasoning, it probably is impossible for Wirges to get a fair trial anywhere in Arkansas, since the constitution provides for moving trials to another county in the same district on any change of venue motion. Wirges does not believe the Conway County situation is unique in Arkansas.

"There are a number of recognized machine counties in Arkansas," he said. "Many of the conditions that exist here exist in them, perhaps not to the same degree."

Machine politics, Wirges says is the direct result on one-party domination.

"The only certain way the people have to correct this is by election of Win Rockefeller as governor," he said. "At the moment I see no Democrat who is inclined to rectify it."

Although Wirges supports Rockefeller, he says he was forced to turn to the GOP because he could get help from no other source. He once asked Faubus for help. It did not come.

But Hawkins' contention that Hawkins is fighting a battle for the Democratic Party is a misrepresentation, Wirges said.

"They say they're fighting us now because we're Republicans," he said. "But they fought us when we were the City Manager Committee and when we were the Better Government League. They fight us because we are the opposition."

Hawkins says his side of the battle has been, from the beginning, purely defensive.

"I'm fighting for my job," he said. "I've been a public official for 25 years. I make my living at this. Can you blame me for fighting?"

Hawkins contends Wirges started the fight to build circulation of an ailing newspaper.

He said his troubles with Wirges started after Wirges collected twice from the county on a $211.50 bill for legal advertising, and he insisted that the overpayment be refunded.

Wirges said the double collection resulted from a bookkeeping error and he made the amount good as soon as he could.

The man on the street in Morrilton was amused by the feud when it started. Now the average citizen is weary of the fighting and the bad name it has given Morrilton.

"I wish both sides would go away," said one businessman. And another pleaded with a visiting newsmen to "write something nice about Morrilton."

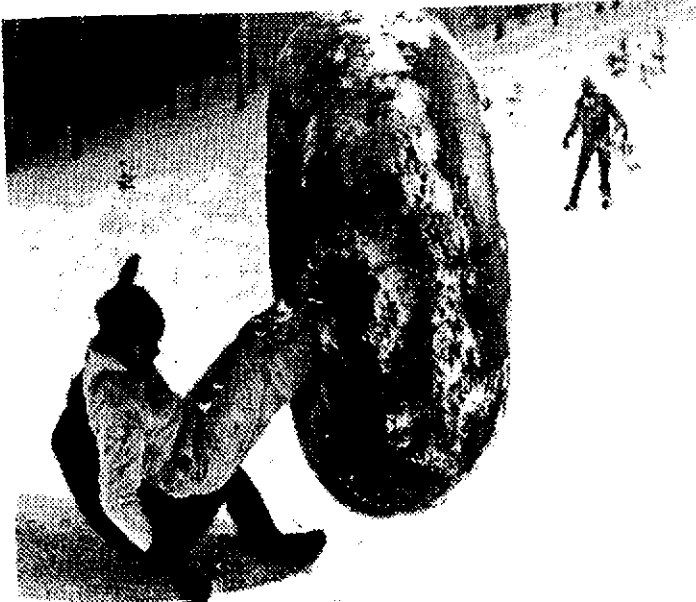

"We've had more bad publicity than we deserve," he said. "We've been pictured as a political jungle. We've got a lot of people here who wish this fight would end so we can get back to the business of building the town."

NATURAL CANTEEN—Living off the land isn't the rule with U.S. troops in Viet Nam, but when a coconut palm is handy it can provide a refreshing change from tepid canteen water, as Maj. Raymond Robinson of Walton, N.Y., discovers.

A TUBE FOR ALL SEASONS — The younger sports set out west has discovered that large, economy size tractor innertubes can be pressed into year-round service. Casper, Wyo., youths found that tubes are not only fine for lake and stream paddling in summer but also great on sled hills in winter. Not as fast or maneuverable as toboggans, they still have one big advantage — collisions with trees aren't nearly as bone shattering.

DETROIT — COURTROOM GO-GO — It was Karen the Go-Go Girl, whose full identity is Karen Lynn Davidson, 22, versus Patrolman James Brodie, right, when Detroit court Referee Frederick E. Byrrd asked both to show just what went on in the discotheque where Karen is employed. Brodie had ticketed the owner, Henry Roman, accusing him of "allowing immoral, vulgar and suggestive or froak dancing." Karen won in a breeze, the officer admitting that as a go-go girl, he was a better cop. The case was adjourned to May 25. (AP Wirephoto)

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. With the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Letter To Teenage Girls

—From A Mother

Dear Helen: I wish you would publish this letter in your teen column so girls would read it. I have a son who is in the combat area overseas. We are very proud of him, and think others should be proud of our fighting men too.

Instead, too many girls think "If they're gone, forget 'em." They won't even bother to write. He met a nice girl while he was home on his last leave. Nothing serious, but they both liked each other. I heard yesterday that she wrote and told him she couldn't write any more because she was "too busy." He has written to several others, but never got replies — and, Helen, he was a very popular boy in high school.

During World War II, I wrote to seven boys, and didn't drop my correspondence with any of them, even though it took most of my spare time. I felt they were fighting for us, so this was just a little I could do to repay them. Besides, I loved hearing from them — whenever they found time to answer. I know I helped — they said so often.

Won't you remind the people at home that these fellows in Vietnam are also fighting a war? And they also get lonely? — Mrs. L.

Dear Helen: I'll be glad to—again, and again and again! Nothing is lonelier for a fighting man than a mail-less mail call. Keep those letters flying girls! — H.

You're a kid for 13 or 14 years. But you're an adult for a long, long time.

I was not as excited about Christmas this year as I'd like to be. I mean, Santa won't be coming to see many more. I can't cry a sad movie or laugh and giggle whenever I please. I don't ask for seconds at parties. I can't loaf and be lazy and have a blast all the time. I don't pout or sulk if I get my way. I can't play football or hide-and-seek with the neighborhood boys. I can't yell and shout and stomp my room. I can't have junk all over the house.

And I can't ask Mom to please tuck me in bed and kiss me goodnight. Why? Because now I'm a woman with responsibilities of my very own.

Well, good for me. I know you all, like me, are in a big hurry to grow up. Please don't be. Because it isn't half the fun of being a silly, giggly, crazy "kid."

I miss it. So will you! — Shary
Dear Shary: I could wish all impatient 12-year-olds would tape your fine letter to their mirrors — but they won't. They will have to learn for themselves just as you did. — H.

Dear Helen: My boyfriend has a sister who is six years younger than us. I don't get along with his family and don't feel it is necessary to have his sister in the wedding party. But he feels differently and says it would only be causing trouble if I kept her out. I'm working hard to save for my wedding. I don't want it ruined, and it will be if his side of the family gets into it and starts bickering. Doesn't my happiness come before his family's or is it my place to give in and have his sister included? — E. T.

Dear E: If you're already fighting over one minor wedding invitation, think what will happen when you hit the really big hurdles of married life. Give in! — H.

Late Show Sat. at Saenger Also Tuesday - Wednesday

Michael Parks and Celia Kaye enjoy the hot prairie portion of their trip across the country in Pennebaker's production "Wild Seed," a Universal release, from the top of the boxcar which has been their abode. A sensitive romantic adventure, the picture was directed by Brian Hutton and produced by Albert S. Ruddy, with Walter Seltzer and Marlon Brando, Sr. as executive producers.

Our Symbol

One of our most treasured relics is the Liberty Bell. It is so-called because it was rung on July 8, 1776 to summons the citizenry for the terse announcement that the Declaration of Independence had been adopted. Today, it remains the greatest symbol of a nation free from tyranny in government and intolerance in religion.

But one fact often overlooked is that when the historic bell was originally cast its makers turned to the Bible, to Leviticus, for the words inscribed around its contour: "Proclaim Liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." What a beginning! What a heritage! What a privilege to be a son or daughter of Freedom's Land. What a blessing to be an American.

How great is our Symbol!!!

Flu Bug in Space Is a Possibility

By RONALD THOMPSON
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — An influenza outbreak in space?

It could happen. The flu bug, or any of its infectious virus friends for that matter, can strike an astronaut just as easily as it can the next man.

Astronauts could unknowingly carry the virus into space, a hostile environment where razor-sharp control of a spacecraft is essential to survival.

With this in mind, the space agency has awarded a $38,000 contract to the U. S. Public Health Service to determine the best approach to control and early diagnosis of viral infection in astronauts on a flight.

Doctors at the Manned Spacecraft Center agree that it is not a question of can an astronaut be infected by a virus while in space, but rather can it be prevented.

"It is possible we might start a flight with a man in the pre-clinical stage of some viral infection," Dr. Walter Kemmerer, the center's monitor on the virus control study, said in an interview. "We want to have techniques to enable us to prevent this from happening, and to detect that it is happening," he added.

"Also, we want to know how to prevent one astronaut from transmitting it to another inside the spacecraft."

The chances of a virus striking an astronaut will increase when flight crews get larger.

Just what would be done — whether the mission would be ended — will depend largely on the seriousness of the illness and how far the ship was from earth, Kemmerer said.

While in earth orbit, the spacemen could be rushed home for medical treatment in a relatively short period of time, but on excursions of several weeks or months to other planets, they would be forced to be their own doctors, while receiving instructions from medical men monitoring flight from earth.

No American astronaut has reported even so much as a slight cold in space.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman, command pilot of the 14-day flight of Gemini 7, caused some moments of concern last December when he sneezed while in orbit. It was called by some "the sneeze heard around the world."

Doctors monitoring the medical data beamed back to earth from Gemini 7 quickly checked Borman's condition, and detected no sign of impending illness.

Kemmerer said that the virus control contract calls for a final report within a year.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Partner Gives Show Away

1955 Vanderbilt Cup Winners
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Waldemar von Zedtwitz of New York has been one of the greatest bridge players of all time. He won his first Vanderbilt Cup in 1930 and has won just about every trophy a player can pick up. What's more, he is still a top-flight competitor and there's nothing old fashioned about either his bidding or play.

One of his favorite stories is about how one of his best deceptive plays went wrong when his partner gave the show away.

Waldy sat East and covered his partner's jack of clubs with the queen at trick one. South won and promptly finessed the ten of spades. Waldy ducked. This is a standard bit of defensive deception. You duck the first time. Waldy also noted that his partner had followed to the first spade with the deuce. They were playing odd and even, so Waldy knew that his partner had exactly three spades. If West held either two or four spades, he would have started a high-low signal.

South returned to his hand with a diamond and led a second spade. When he played the jack from dummy, Waldy was ready with a play that should have been a winner. He ducked again!

Declarer returned to his hand with another diamond, cashed his last high diamond and led the deuce to give Waldy a diamond trick. At this point, all Waldy's plans were shattered. West discarded his last spade!

Now declarer had no further problem with spades and Waldy's deceptive play had cost him an overtrick. Declarer might have picked up the king anyway if West had not helped him out. We'll never know.

Trouble Is Brewing for Fgn. Policy

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is brewing up some trouble for the administration's foreign policy.

The developing contest is over a matter that has been of continuing irritation to Republicans and Democrats alike.

The issue is continued trade with North Viet Nam by foreign nations friendly to the United States. While the administration claims this trade has slowed down in recent months and has taken some steps to curb it, many members of Congress want an outright ban.

Several bills have been introduced to close U.S. ports to ships which carry cargoes to North Viet Nam. Cargoes loaded in American ports generally are not of military value and are unloaded in ports of friendly nations. However, proponents of the legislation claim, the ships involved visit American ports after having unloaded other cargoes in North Viet Nam.

Rep. Charles E. Chamberlain, R-Mich., who has waged a long campaign against the practice, says that 401 ships flying flags of non-Communist nations arrived in North Viet Nam in 1964. In 1965, Chamberlain said, the number dropped to 119.

Chamberlain got his figures from the Defense Department and they deal only with unclassified information.

"The true figure is more than double what we are being told," he said, "and it amounts to more arrivals by free world ships than by Communist ships."

Most of the ships, he said, are chartered to Communist nations and carry Communist goods which the Defense Department claims are not vital to North Viet Nam's war effort. But, he emphasized, they release Communist ships to carry war material.

More than half the non-Communist ships that visited North Viet Nam ports in 1965, Chamberlain said, were registered under the flag of the United Kingdom.

Sponsors of the bills to close U.S. ports to ships trading with North Viet Nam aren't too optimistic about winning their fight in that field. But they have another plan which they believe will work.

They are going to offer amendments to the annual foreign aid and Defense Department appropriation bills to cut off U.S. financial assistance to any nation that allows its ships to continue the trade.

They almost succeeded with that move last year when the House approved an outright ban against aid to these nations. The Senate refused to go along with a strict ban and voted to allow the President to decide whether continued aid was in the best interests of the United States. The House backed down by a vote of 174 to 164, a margin slim enough to be overcome in a congressional election year like 1966.

The Night Wilt Sank the Foul—Or How the Bottom Fell Out

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA)

Imagine Babe Ruth hitting the 60th homer off Tom Zachary in a ball park at Palatka. Or Johnny Unitas throwing his 213th touchdown pass next season in the high school stadium at Opelousas. Or Ben Hogan winning his fourth U.S. Open in a cow pasture at Nocogoches.

Now you get the picture of Wilt Chamberlain dropping point No. 20,881 of his seven-season career in an arena in Charleston, W.Va., to become the most prolific basketball scorer of all time.

It happened the other night. Wilt stepped up to the foul line with 1:32 left on the clock. Yes, Virginia, they do have clocks in Charleston. And sank a foul shot against the Detroit Pistons to break the old record set by Bob Pettit. In itself, Wilt sinking a foul shot is something like Uggade delivering a moon shot.

The big man with the goatee is the worst foul shooter in history. To compound the felony, he stretched the record by dropping a second foul shot, too. Fate was malevolent in creating this setting.

There's something hush, you should pardon the expression, in a sport where Wilt is the most accurate shooter in the league, when he can't hit the bucket standing still at three paces (it's actually 15 feet away, but Wilt takes big steps).

There's no disrespect for any of the cities mentioned earlier. It was damn nice, in fact, that the citizens of Charleston were let in on this historic occasion. But Wilt happens to play for the Philadelphia 76ers, and this was scheduled as one of their "home" games.

It's symptomatic of the way pro basketball is going in an era when the National Football League commands more money for one game ($2 million for the title contest) than the National Basketball Association gets for its entire season television package.

Pro basketball players, and I've said this before, are among the greatest athletic talents ever put on display. Fellows like Elgin Baylor and Oscar Robertson are 6-5 giants who have tremendous body control and lightning reflexes that would go big in any sport. Wilt could have been the greatest high jumper in history and he's so sensitive about the fact that he was measured at 7 feet 1 inch, the last time he let them put a tape measure to him, that he frequently disdains trying to work between you'n'me

in under the basket and resorts to his patented fade-away jump shot. Figures it even up his advantage.

But the fact remains there are times when Wilt can't avoid dunking the ball. It's good for an ooh and an aah the first couple of times around, but is it basketball?

When Doc Naismith hung up his first peach basket in the Springfield "Y" 75 years ago, Mr. Average Man was somewhere around 5-7 tall, and a height of 10 feet was a formidable target.

In three-quarters of a century, or since the advent of the breakfast of champions, A. Man has progressed to the point where they're building special Bentleys to accommodate Wilt Chamberlain (that Volkswagen ad is just a come-on). But the basket, now daintily laced with net, is still 10 feet off the floor. So Wilt can sidle up to it, barely get up on his toes and drop the ball through the hoop.

The other pros are such great shooters that they've literally overpowered their sport, and the rules cater to them. There's no finesse needed with a 24-second clock urging them on.

"Hell," said Dave DeBusschere, when they appointed him the playing coach of the Detroit Pistons, "who needs to coach? The Boston Celts have shown that it's all run and shoot."

Logically, they should make it harder to shoot. Shrink the circumference of the rim, raise the height of the basket.

"Why bother?" shrug the frogdylites who run the teams. "We're doing good like it is."

A thinking man like Fred Schaus, the coach of the Los Angeles Lakers, advocates the raising of the baskets. (Footnote: there are no seven-footers on his team.) But Fred would do it on a graduated scale, like six inches for high school kids, a foot for colleges, maybe two for the pros, to get America's growing boys acclimated to the new heights.

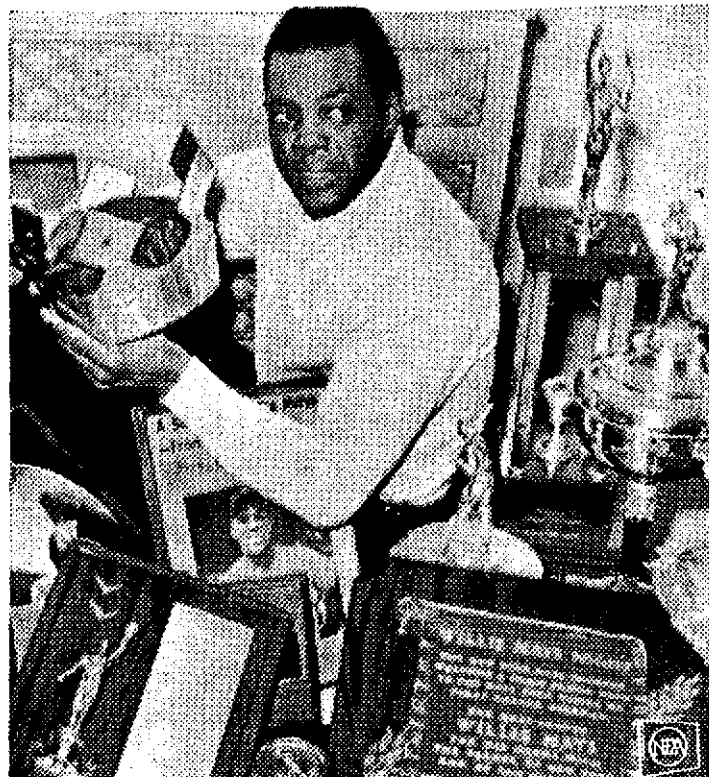

A fellow named Jay Archer took a reverse step in this direction when he amended the game for little kids and called it biddy basketball. The ball's smaller, the baskets are only eight and a half feet high.

It sounded great for my seven-year-old prodigy when he demanded a basket against the garage. I fudged a little on the height of the backboard.

Boy, you ought to see me dunk those eight-footers.

San Francisco Giants

By SANDY PADWE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PITCHING—Depth was a problem all last season, so this winter the front office obtained a lefty starter, Joe Gibbon, and one of the best righthand relief men in the game, Lindy McDaniel. Gibbon (4-9) did not have a good year at Pittsburgh, but the Giants are willing to gamble on a comeback. McDaniel had a 2.58 ERA in 71 relief appearances for the Cubs. The starting rotation consists of Juan Marichal (22-13) and a 2.14 ERA, Bob Shaw (16-9), Bob Bolin (14-6) and Ron Herbel (12-9). Frank Linzy was one of the most effective relief pitchers in the league last year with a 9-3 record and 1.43 ERA. Gaylord Perry is still around but will be challenged by rookies Joe Overton and Mike Davidson. RATING—B+.

INFIELD—If Orlando Cepeda's knee has healed, Willie McCovey will be freed for outfield duty. That should give the Giants added offensive strength. Cepeda played only 33 games last season and had one home run. Hal Lanier is the second baseman but hit only .226 last season. At short will be either Dick Schofield (.209) or Jim Davenport (.250). Jim Ray Hart, who hit .299 with 23 home runs and 96 RBI, is at third. It's weak in the middle, but strong at the points. RATING—B.

OUTFIELD—Willie Mays will have to rest a little more this year. That means he'll miss seven games. Last year it was six. The other starters will be Jay Alou (.298) and Len Gabrielson who finished at .293 last season. RATING—B+.

CATCHER—Tom Haller didn't have an outstanding year in 1965 with a .251 mark. But his work with the pitchers—and on defense—compensates for the lower average. Dick Bertell is the No. 2 man and rookie Bob Barton has a chance to stick as the emergency replacement. RATING—B.

BENCH—Cap Peterson is a good utility man and a fair pinch-hitter. Don Landrum, acquired from the Cubs, will be Mays' replacement in the late innings. He's a capable pinch-hitter. Tito Fuentes is available for infield work. Ollie Brown, a home run hitter at Tacoma last year, could make it in the outfield. RATING—B.

SUMMARY—Herman Franks may not be a popular figure with the press, but with the players he is. Last year, without Cepeda, he guided them to a second-place finish. This season Cepeda is back. No one knows how healthy he is. The pitching still isn't that strong and neither is the middle of the infield. Prediction—3rd.

Baseball History: Mexican Accent

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y.—(NEA) Sal Maglie, a journeyman pitcher on one of baseball's nondescript teams, leaned over to lift the ringing phone from its cradle in his Miami hotel room.

The call interrupted a nap on a March evening in 1946, nearly 20 years ago.

It also changed Maglie's career, his life and the history of baseball.

Would Sal, in the midst of spring training, be interested in pitching down in Mexico? No. Then how about the other guys? The Pasquel brothers, patrons of the Latin league, were interested in obtaining infielders and pitchers.

The caller was Danny Gardella, Sal's teammate in the 45-man team, the first major league club to sign a Mexican League player.

Maglie passed on Gardella's proposition to pitcher Adrian Zabala, shortstop Buddy Kerr, second baseman George Hausmann and first baseman Roy Zimmermann. Zabala, Hausmann and Zimmermann were interested. Kerr was tempted.

In the eyes of Giants' owner Horace Stoneham that made Sal the "instigator of the whole Mexican League affair." Stoneham met with Hausmann, Zabala, Zimmermann and Maglie in manager Mel Ott's room. He banished them from the Giants' training camp.

Little more than 24 hours later they were in Mexico. Sal Maglie, 45 years old, a baseball legend, leaned back and watched his mental stopwatch to put things into focus.

The first time I made down there, asked me to be partner in the business, his head

"She'll be 20 years old soon. It doesn't seem possible."

Maglie was assigned to Puebla, a city of about 40,000 two hours outside of Mexico City. He was the only American on the team.

"Dolph Luque was my manager, a mean man," says Maglie. "I found out that you have to be hard if you expect your pitchers to learn from you. I've been out of major league baseball for three years, but I'm going back to handling the Red Sox pitchers this spring. I'll teach them what Luque taught me."

Luque taught him that the thin air in Mexico forced the curve to be thrown sharper.

"I used to throw a roundhouse," remembers Maglie. "Luque made me break it off sharper. I threw it like a slider. He told me to get the hitters out with my fast ball and just show them my curve. When I got back with the Giants it was the other way around—they saw my fast ball and went out on my curve."

The Mexican League played 96 games in 1946. Puebla's best pitcher, Maglie, appeared 46 times, winning 20 and losing 12. The next year, in a 126-game schedule, he won 20, lost 13. He was Mexico's first 20-game winner.

"The club owners were having a tough time paying off the name players like Max Lanier and Mickey Owens," recalled Maglie. "They wanted to cut me to about $1,000 a month in 1948, so I went up to the independent Provincial League in Quebec."

One Sunday in June, 1958, Commissioner Happy Chandler lifted his three-year ban on the Mexican Leaguers.

The reporters called Lanier and Owens and Fred Martin, ignoring the little-known Maglie. They didn't realize Maglie was to become the best-known veteran of a Mexican campaign since Gen. Pershing.

Kramer's 'Garden' Growing

By SANDY PADWE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA)—Every year, the United States Lawn Tennis Association releases reams of statistics detailing the tremendous growth of the sport all over the country.

And Jack Kramer sits out in California, wondering.

Kramer is a professional tennis promoter. For years now he has been trying to launch a pro tour in this country similar to that of the professional golfers. So far there has been little success, but a breakthrough may be near.

Seven months ago Kramer received a call from Fred Podesta of the Madison Square Garden Corp.

It was an offer for an exhibition tournament at the Garden in March. So beginning March 22 and running through the 26th, 12 of the world's best tennis players will be battling for $25,000 in prize money. The purse is the largest on the tour.

This is what we've been waiting for," Kramer said. "Anything that ever went good in pro tennis started in the Garden."

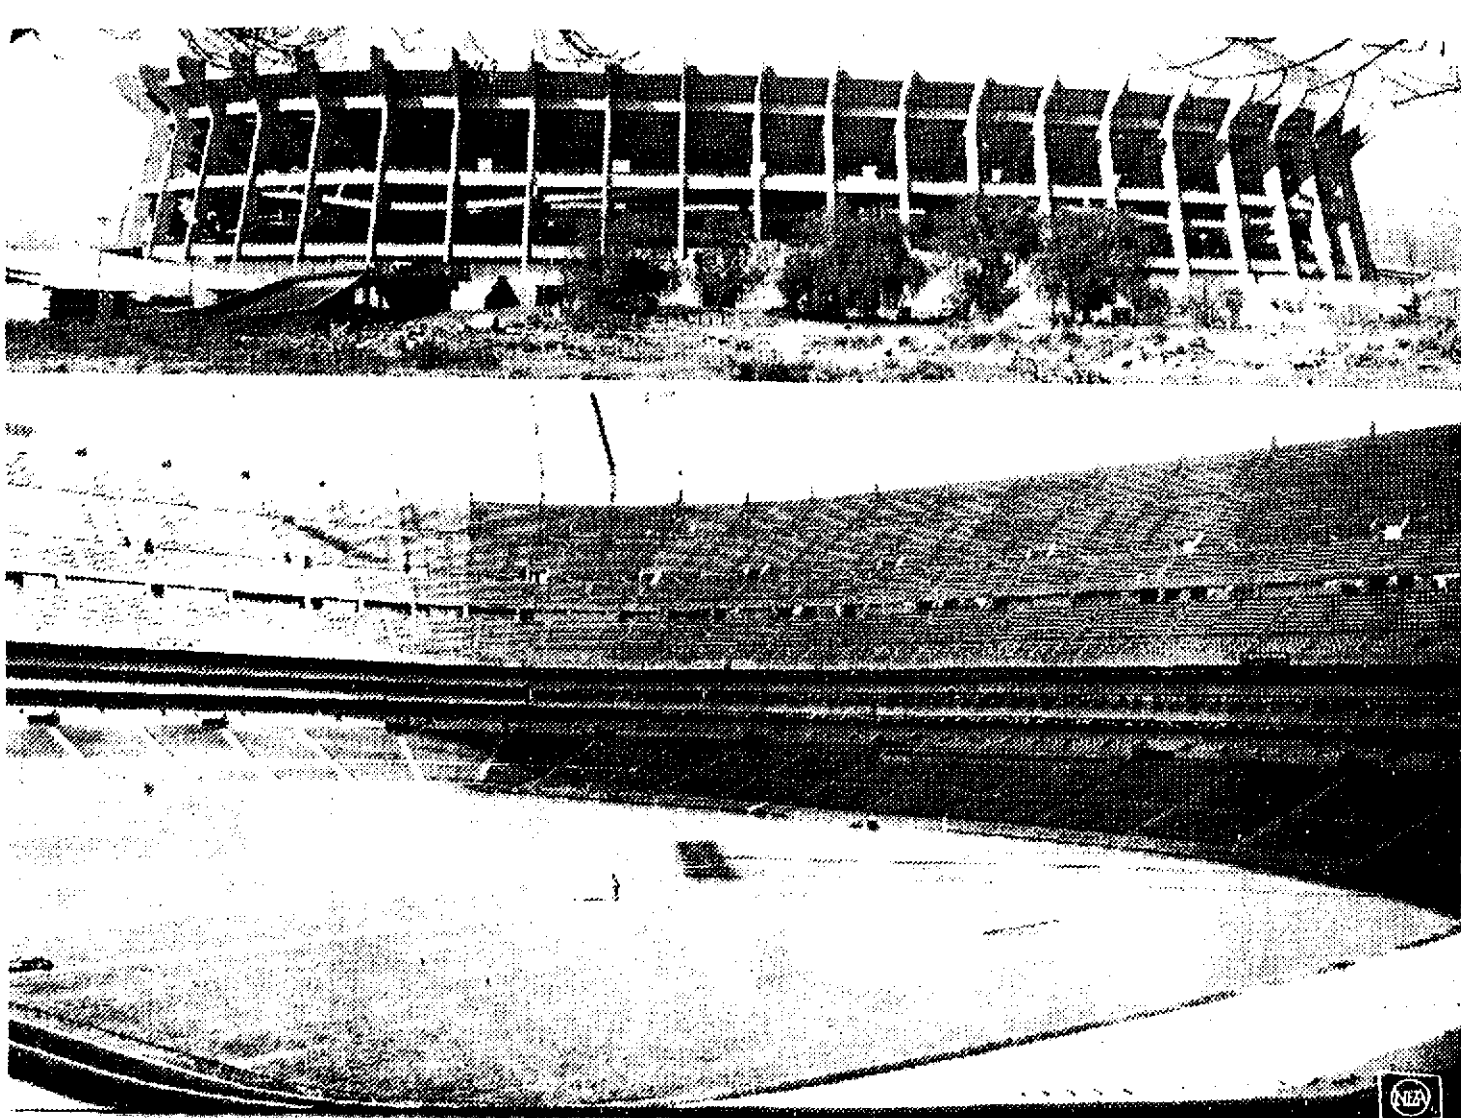

"If we have a successful tournament maybe that will convince promoters in Los Angeles, Chicago, Philadelphia or any other city to duplicate the Garden tournament. Then we would be on our way."

No-Work-All-Pay
A Nearing Fact?

Nobody seemed to lift much of an eyebrow over that recommendation of President Johnson's "blue ribbon study committee" that every American family be guaranteed a minimum annual income, perhaps $3,000 a year. For one thing, the notion isn't exactly new and, for another, it appears to be part of the future plan, however much cain the traditionalists raise in the interim.

It would make 35 million Americans economic wards of the political party that adopts it, which is our principal objection, but it wouldn't result in a totally idle culture because a lot of us would need to continue to work to pay the taxes to support those who decide to "retire" forthwith. Actually, though the plan is likely to blossom in one form or another in an emerging social society, the plan is still premature. As long as war consumes $60 billion of the national wealth, the dream of a subsidized Easy Street must remain, for most Americans, just an unpaved alley. And how much would $3,000 buy in what surely would become a highly-inflated economy? Or what real point in idleness if it implies political serfdom? The plan has been proposed and the President has labeled it "worthy of future study." We wouldn't advise you to wait around for such a long-range prospect. Just set the alarm for six, and rise and shine. — Asheville (N.C.) Citizen

An Armchair Hobby
Not long ago we were in conversation with a man obliged to stay at home and be very quiet for a considerable time while he recuperated from a serious illness. He was deploring the fact that he did not have some interest that he could follow up while so nearly immobilized. We suggested one of our own hobbies that can be pursued from an armchair; namely the listing, looking up and acquisition of words with which one is not familiar. In fact, we recommend this activity to all and sundry. It means introducing yourself to new concepts in some cases and to new shades of meaning in others. It is also relatively easy and very inexpensive. — Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal

Hawaiian Set New Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Patsy Mink, D-Hawaii, set a couple of records Tuesday. She became the first woman to read George Washington's Farewell Address in the House of Representatives since the custom became traditional in 1933.

What's more surprising than that is the speed in which she did it: 40 minutes.

That's two minutes less than the unofficial record to date and seven minutes less than it took Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., to read the 7,600-word essay Tuesday.

"I had no idea I was so fast," Rep. Mink said. "How horrible."

Dismissal Is Explained

WHITE HALL, Ark. (AP) — The White Hall School Board said Tuesday that it dismissed Capt. James C. Gartman because it wanted a superintendent who would work with the board "with less friction."

The announcement came after the board announced the hiring of a new superintendent, Julius Brown of the Dollarway School District. Brown holds the same position at Dollarway.

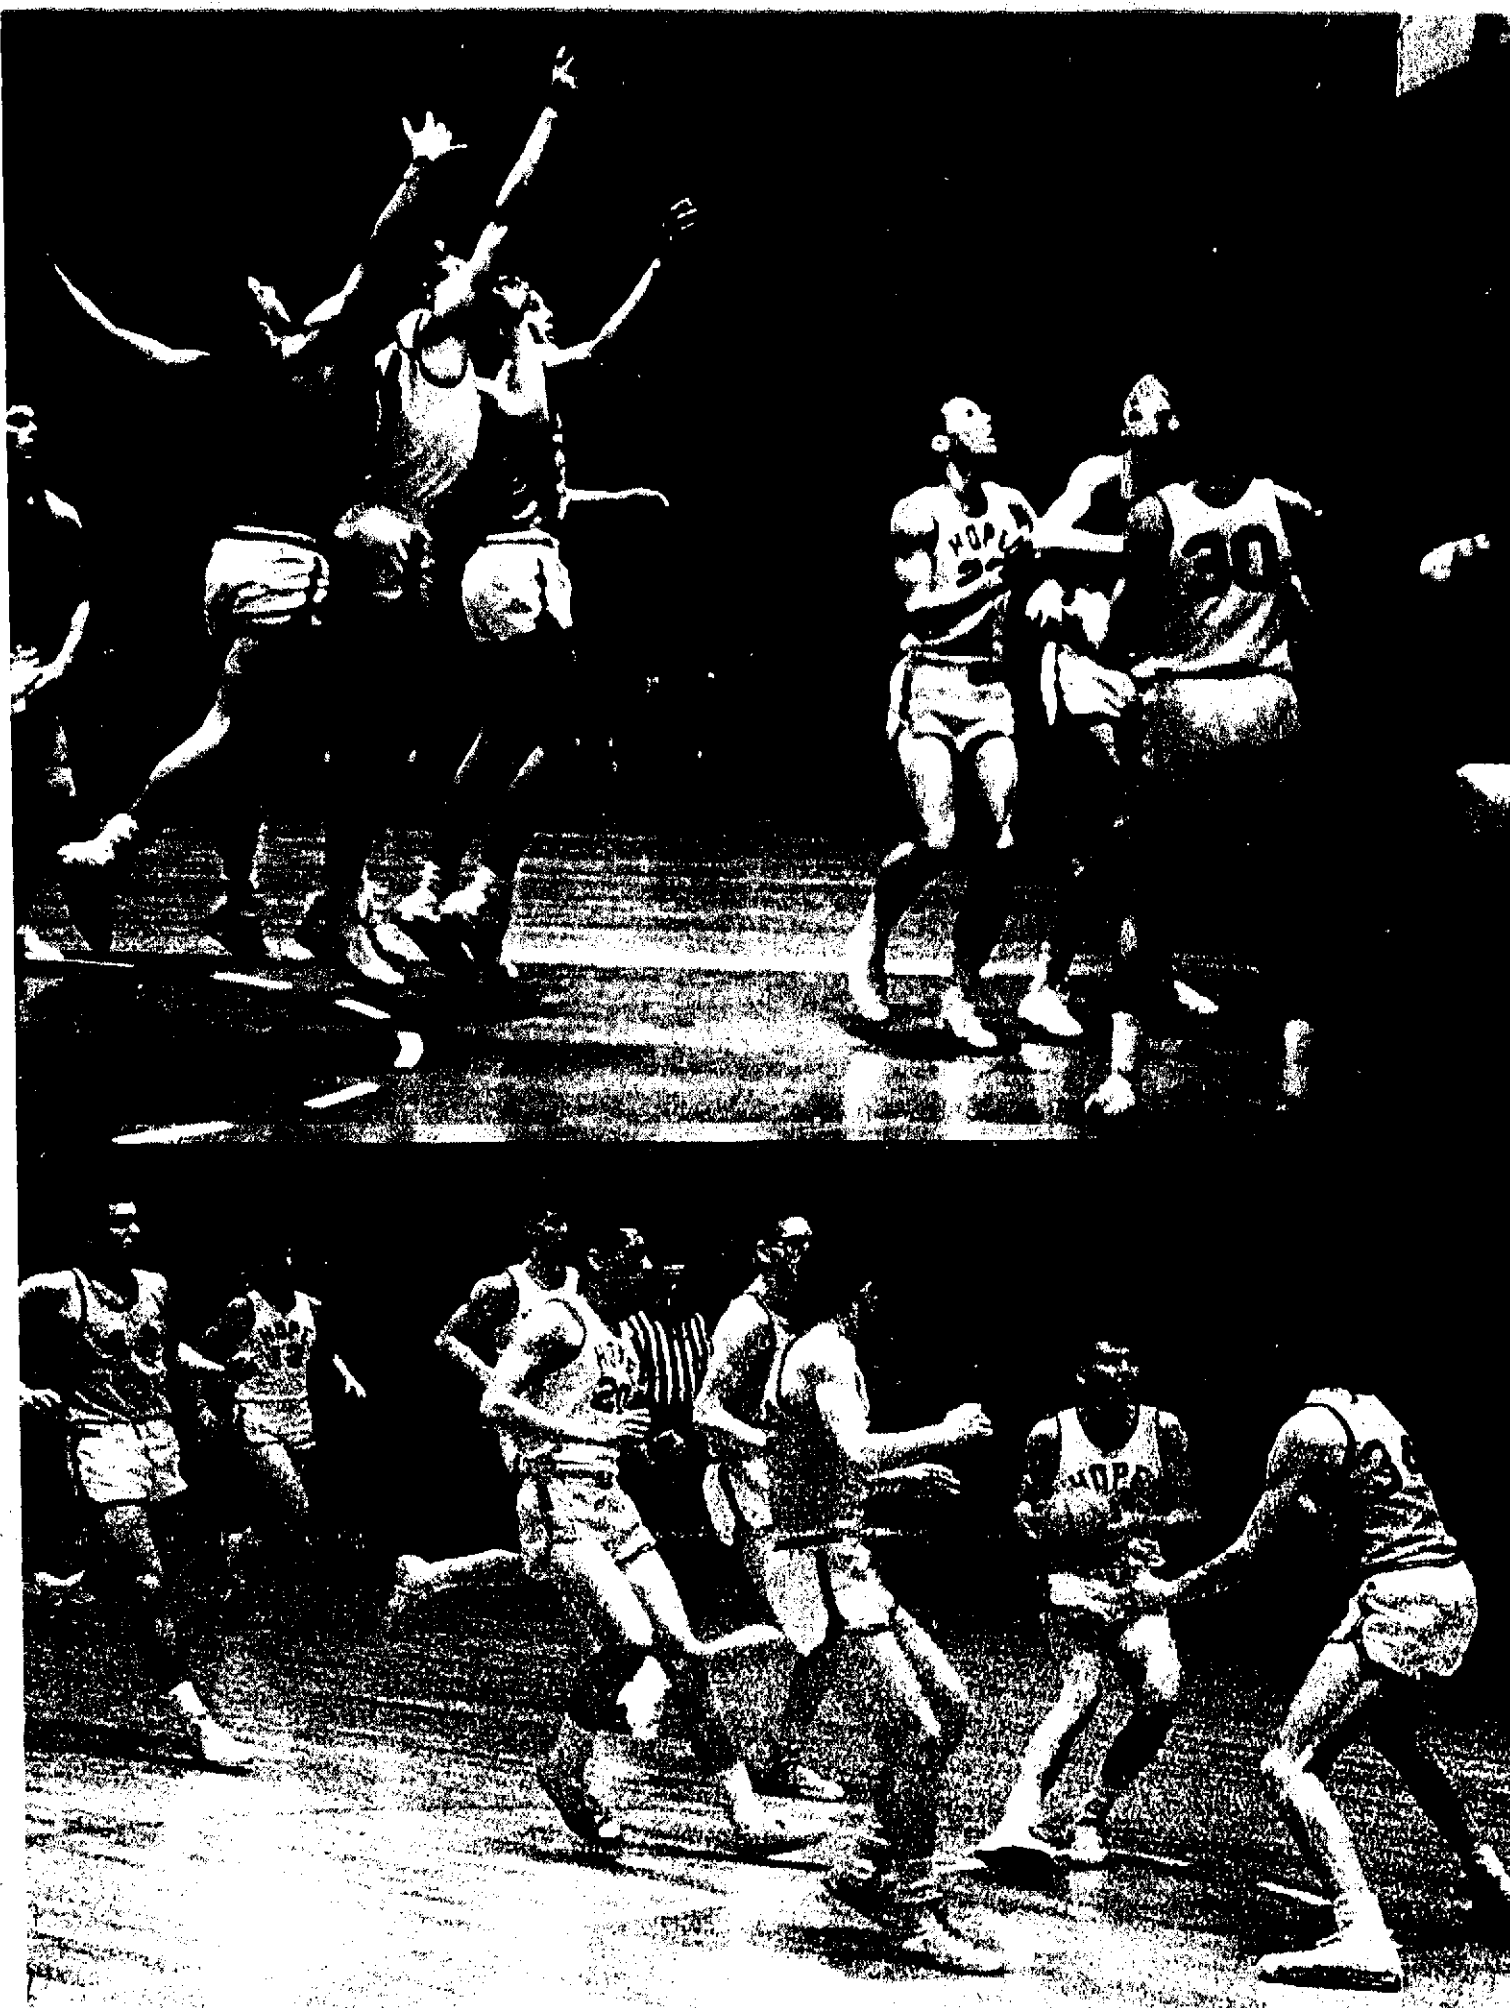

The White Hall board made its announcement to the White Hall Teachers Association, which teachers said was formed to protect them from arbitrary dismissal.

Bobcats Win Key Game From Warren

By LAARY DON WRIGHT

Setting their sights on the AA State Tournament, the Hope Bobcats came through with a key victory by bouncing the Warren Lumberjacks, 79-74, in the last minute of play during 4AA action in Jones Field House last night.

Hope pulled into a one point lead, 74-73 with 1:28 left in the final period after trading points and swapping lead with the Lumberjacks the entire game.

At this point the Cats went into their stall offense. As often in the past the stall served its purpose as it caused Warren to foul in desperation. In the last minute the locals added another five to their tally. This gave them a margin of victory of five points, the largest difference between the two teams all night.

The Bobcats' balanced scoring was their greatest asset through the game as they were able to hit effectively from all positions. General sluggishness on defense was the Cats' big weakness and at times it stuck out like a sore thumb.

However they were able to compensate for this by consistent hustle and desire on offense.

Rising to the occasions time after time all night long with the all important pressure points the local cagers proved that they have what it takes to stick it out when the going gets rough.

The Bobcats trailed through out the first quarter and were down by three, 19-16, at the end clusion.

Then in the second period things got even closer and began to lean a little more toward the home team. At one point midway through the quarter Hope led by five but only momentarily. By halftime the Lumberjacks had narrowed it to one. Hope 36-Warren 35.

The Cats added another to this lead through the third quarter making it 55-53 entering the final stanza.

Although Hope never trailed after that the score was tied at seven different points during that fourth quarter. Warren really laid the pressure on the Cats thick but the Hope boys always measured up, as they managed to maintain their hold on third place in District 4AA.

Dennis Ramsey led Hope with total of 22 points. Three other Cats, Larry May, Bobby McGill, and Ronnie Ingram also scored in double figures with 16 points apiece. Stan Parris scored 9 also.

The Bobcats led Warren in number of rebounds, 35-29. Parris was high in this department with 13 rebounds. He was supported by Ramsey with 12 and May with 9.

In the "B" team game Warren edged out Hope 50-48, breaking the deadlock with 43 seconds left.

The Blizzards as they prefer to be called jumped to the early advantage in the first period going ahead by 21-11 entering the second episode.

But Warren made up for lost time in the second quarter to establish a 30-27 half time lead. The local B-teamers were then able to cut only a point off this margin throughout the second half.

Bennett Denies Woman's Charge

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett denied Thursday a Negro woman's charge that she was told she had to have the recommendation of certain Negro politicians before she could get a temporary job with the state.

Bennet was speaking for the state Revenue department in filing an answer in federal court to a suit brought by Mrs. Mildren Tennyson of Little Rock.

Bennett's reply said that the federal court did not have jurisdiction, and that the 14th Amendment, which Mrs. Tennyson contended was violated, did not apply to temporary jobs in the state Revenue Department.

Credit Cards Are Almost as Important to Man Today as a Lipstick Is to a Woman

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Star Feature Writer

Throughout the month of February, Extension Homemakers Clubs in Hempstead County have been having programs on credit buying. The subject was being studied by the homemakers because it is so much a part of our daily living. Those in the business world have long recognized its importance. Because we had some interesting information about credit, we thought it fitting to bring it to your attention at this time.

Credit cards are as important to a man as his car keys and as handy for a woman as her lipstick. When you apply for a credit card from a major oil company, chances are that a credit report will be supplied to the company by your local credit bureau.

In most cases, though, the oil company, or any other major credit card issuer, won't be billed direct by the bureau, but by a sales organization called Credit Bureau Reports, Inc. "CBR" performs a helpful function for bureaus by selling bureau services to regional and national creditors.

According to John L. Spford, executive vice-president of the Associated Credit Bureaus of America, the consumer market will continue to grow for several years to come as the millions of children born during the boom of World War II and the years immediately following reach adulthood.

There have been more intensive credit sales promotion campaigns and greater public acceptance of credit purchasing programs. It is estimated that 7 out of every 10 adults in the United States carry at least one major credit card and that among motorists the figure rises to 9 out of 10.

As a result of increasing credit usage, the credit reporting and collection service industry has become more complicated. Faster service and consistent top-quality reports are being demanded. The members of the Associated Credit Bureaus of America (ACB of A), of which the Credit Bureau of Hempstead County is one, are all meeting these challenges today while bringing about better communications and closer ties between the credit bureaus and collection services, their users, and the consumer.

But if you think the service is fast and efficient now, you haven't taken a peek at what lies ahead. In the future, a store in a large metropolitan area where you ask for a charge account will receive credit information on you in less than a minute.

Inquiry stations in the store's credit department will be linked to a computer in the local credit bureau. Store personnel will request information from the computer which will produce your credit record. Then your record will be transmitted direct to the store's credit department and flashed on the screen of the inquiry station. If your credit record is favorable, you will probably be granted credit immediately.

While credit bureaus serving smaller areas may continue to answer requests for credit information manually, their methods will also be changed. The use of computers is only one of the technological advances which will have a significant effect on both large and small credit bureaus, collection services, and on you as a user of credit in our expanding economy.

In the past year, the Credit Bureau of Hempstead County, inc. made over 3200 consumer credit reports, and in the collection service division it recovered past-due retail and medical accounts receivable in 1965. Any further information about services, etc., are available at the local bureau. If you are undecided about which word in the name of the concern comes first it is Credit a name of increasing importance in he world today.

Admit Failure

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet economist has conceded that the Kremlin's latest economic development plan will not satisfy all consumers by 1970.

Marines Fight Off Determined Enemy Attack

By THOMAS A. REEDY

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines fought off a determined Viet Cong attack near Chu Lai today and U.S. artillery duelled with enemy mortar fire as the Communists continued to step up their offensive.

Today's attack by about 100 Red troops on a 50-man Marine unit marked the second time in two days that the Viet Cong struck at U.S. emplacements.

A force of 160 Leathernecks hurled back a Viet Cong attack Friday night at Phu Bai, killing three Communists, spokesmen said. Marine losses were reported light.

Today's target for the Viet Cong was Phu Loi, an artillery base area 15 miles north of Saigon. U.S. spokesmen said the Reds fired 16 mortar rounds, but casualties were light.

The Viet Cong were also active in the northern part of the Mekong Delta, attacking a government outpost Friday 60 miles southwest of Saigon. A spokesman said the 60-man defense force suffered heavy casualties.

For the fourth straight day, air attacks over North Viet Nam were hampered by poor weather. An Air Force spokesman said all the bombing Friday was by radar.

Air Force pilots flying F105 Thunderchief jets smashed at an ammunition depot and storage area five miles from the city of Vinh. Other Air Force targets included the Vinh Loc bridge and highway complex.

Special Senate Meet to Debate Viet Nam War

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate meets today for a special Saturday session of the great Viet Nam debate — with no debaters in sight.

Acting Democratic Leader Russell B. Long said he sent wires to all senators — including himself — pleading "If you have a speech to make, come make your speech."

But Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., who had just finished one four-hour address attacking administration Viet Nam policy and planned another for Monday, said he knew of no one who planned to speak today.

"If no one shows up, I'll be here," promised Long, "and if the spirit moves me, I may make a speech." The Louisiana Democrat is a strong supporter of President Johnson's policies.

Johnson holds a news conference in his office today with Viet Nam to be the principal subject of discussion.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey also sent his regrets Friday in response to an invitation from Chairman J. W. Fulbright to discuss his Asian trip and foreign aid commitments with the Foreign Relations Committee.

With its well-publicized televised hearings, Fulbright's group has been at the center of the debate criticizing Johnson's Asian policy.

When the vice president was asked about Fulbright's invitation to appear at a closed hearing, he remarked:

"I suggest congressmen should be looking for new issues and new copy and not be having replays."

He observed that he had already briefed the members of the committee along with others at the White House session the day after his return from Asia and, all in all, had met "with almost every member of Congress who is in the city... and I do not really see, in all sincerity, the necessity for further talks."
